Honorable H. Lee Dennison, County Executive and the Members of the Suffolk County Board of Supervisors
County Center
Riverhead, New York

Gentlemen:

It is with pleasure that we present the second edition of our COUNTY CATALOG.

During the year 1963 we published two printings of the first edition in order to meet the demand for this book. The second edition has been revised to include all current data.

We believe it will be very useful to public officials, and those engaged in the business, professional and industrial activities of the county.

Respectfully submitted,

Chairman
Suffolk County Planning Commission

INTRODUCTION

This second edition of the COUNTY CATALOG was necessitated by the depletion of the original printings. The department is gratified with the wide-spread favorable response to our effort. The majority of the reports have gone to governmental agencies, libraries, schools, industrial prospects and research firms. We are also experiencing a heavy demand from the general public.

This edition includes the most current data available. We have endeavored to up-date and revise the entire issue so as to offer an accurate report. We appreciate the public's interest and solicit constructive criticisms with the view toward making this report as useful and accurate as possible.

It should be pointed out that although we have endeavored to present the information in an up-to-date form, the reader is cautioned to note the dates of any statistical material presented.

This publication has been prepared in response to the many requests for statistical or other information pertinent to Suffolk County. Much of the data represents summary tabulations taken from the various studies compiled by this department in our regular Comprehensive Plan Series. For those in need of more detailed information, it is suggested that they contact the department at ANDrew 5-0700. Several of the categories do not have complete listings due to space limitations.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF SUFFOLK COUNTY

Suffolk County is bounded on the north by Long Island Sound and on the south by the Atlantic Ocean. The south shore is paralleled by barrier beaches which create bays between the south shore of the island and the Atlantic Ocean. Fire Island, Moriches and Shinnecock inlets connect these bays to the Atlantic Ocean. The County is approximately eighty-six miles long and twenty-one miles wide at its widest point which is on its western boundary. The major land mass extends eastward from Nassau County for forty-two miles to Riverhead. From Riverhead, two peninsulas continue eastward separated by the waters of Peconic and Gardiners Bays. The northern peninsula terminating at Orient Point is approximately twenty-eight miles in length. The southern one terminates at Montauk Point and is about forty-four miles long. The area of the County is approximately nine hundred and twenty square miles.

The topography is relatively uniform with gentle to moderate slopes extending from north to south. A high ridge of glacial origin running approximately east and west along the northern one-third of the County reaches elevations as high as four hundred and eight feet above sea level. North of the ridge, the topography is generally abrupt with an overall slope to Long Island Sound. South of the ridge, long gentle slopes terminate in the marsh and meadow land bordering the bays of the south shore.

EARLY SUFFOLK COUNTY HISTORY

The Italian explorer Giovanni Verrazano in 1524 first sighted the southern shores of Long Island.

Henry Hudson, in 1609, became the first explorer to land on the Island's western end. Five years later, Adrian Block, having sailed the Sound and rounded Orient Point, was the first white man to set foot in the future Suffolk County when he landed at Montauk Point and was also the first, as far as records show, to contact the Indians of the area - the Montauk tribe.

The first white resident landowner in the County was Lion Gardiner who received manorial rights to Gardiner's Island in 1639 and immediately located there. It was here, approximately 60 years later, that Captain Kidd buried his pirated treasure.

The oldest English settlements in the Empire State were in Suffolk, when pioneers from New England came to the towns of Southold and Southampton during the early 17th Century.

More than thirty years before the County of Suffolk became a reality its land area was more or less predetermined in a treaty between the Dutch and English colonial authorities. By the terms of this treaty of 1650, the two jurisdictions were separated by a line running the length of New England, across the Sound and across Long Island to the Ocean. On Long Island the line ran approximately where the western border of Suffolk County now exists. The treaty confined Dutch jurisdiction to the west of this line and English to the east.

Following the English conquest of New Netherlands in 1664, at a convention in Hempstead which enacted the Duke's Laws by which the new province of New York should be governed, the province was divided into three Ridings. Future Suffolk County comprised the East Riding and its western border was identical with that prescribed in 1650.

In 1683, when Ridings were abandoned and the province of New York was redivided into twelve counties, the East Riding became Suffolk County. By then there were seven townships in this area, two of which (Southold and Southampton) had been in existence for 43 years.

In 1648 nine families, mostly from Southampton, founded the Town of East Hampton and nine years later it was extended eastward to include Montauk.

In 1652 Shelter Island was settled. The little island was first granted town privileges in 1666 but not until 1683 was it designated a town and not before 1730 were town officials elected.

The Town of Huntington dates its founding from 1653 when Richard Holbrook, Robert Williams and Daniel Whitehead purchased a tract of land in the northwestern part thereof. Subsequent purchases during the next fifty years expanded the town area from the Sound to the Atlantic Ocean. In 1872 the southern portion became the Town of Babylon.

In 1655 the Town of Brookhaven was established along the north shore from Stony Brook to Port Jefferson. Additional land acquisitions in succeeding years rounded out the present town. Patchogue and its environs became a part of the town in 1773.

The Town of Smithtown dates back to 1663 when Richard Smith received a land bequest from Lion Gardiner to whom it had been given by Chief Wyandanch. In 1665 a town patent was granted to Richard Smith.

The Town of Islip was founded in 1710 following a series of large land grants, the first to William Nicoll in 1684 covering the eastern part of the town. Before 1703, when Bay Shore and Brightwaters were granted to John Mowbray, brothers Thomas and Richard Willett had received the site of West Islip, Stephen Van Courtland the tract to the east known as Sagtikos Manor and Andrew Gibb what is now the village of Islip.

The Town of Riverhead was formed as a town from the westerly part of Southold Town in 1792. As early as 1727 it had been recognized as the County Seat when the County courthouse and jail were located there. In 1759 Riverhead became the regular meeting place of the Board of Supervisors.

Of Long Island's thirteen Indian tribes, eight roamed wholly within Suffolk County and two tribes partly so. Along the south shore, the Marsapeagues overlapped into Amityville. To the east lived the Secataugs as far as Blue Point and to their east as far as Eastport lived the Unkechaugs, including the Poosepatucks. From Eastport to Bridgehampton were the Shinnecocks, then eastward on the tip of the southern fork the Montauk Indians.

Shelter Island and neighboring islands were the habitat of the Manhansets. The Corchaugs, on the north fork claimed land from Orient Point westward to Wading River, the Setaukets dwelling westward from there to Stony Brook. The Nessaquages occupied present Smithtown and the Matinecocs inhabited the area westward to the East River.

The earliest industries in Suffolk County were cattle raising and off-shore whaling. Two centuries prior to the founding of Texas, beef was being produced in Suffolk County. The County Seal commemorates this fact with the image of a steer. At the same time farming and fishing were essential for survival of early settlements. By 1700, the County was active in cutting cordwood and shipping it to New York from where it was exported. Large quantities of timber also were shipped out of Suffolk, beyond the needs of local ship builders and home builders.

The earliest agricultural crops were corn, wheat and other grains. When sheep raising had become general in the early 1700s fulling mills were built to process wool.

Because of its natural resources, Suffolk County grew steadily throughout the Colonial period. Although retarded by seven years of enemy occupation during the Revolutionary War which resulted in the destruction of the cattle industry, the pursuits of whaling, farming, fishing and cordwooding reached new heights during the postwar era. Up to the late 1840s whaling was the chief local industry. The completion of the railroad from the west end to Greenport in 1844 brought a great increase in farming and a tremendous stimulus to fishing interests.

Following the Civil War, and with the growth of the automobile age of the early 1900s Suffolk County enjoyed a constant influx of summer visitors with a steady growth of summer hotels and cottages. Certainly the influx of summer visitors played a great part in the growth pattern of the County's population and economic expansion.

FIRE INSURANCE RATES FOR SUFFOLK COUNTY
(In cents per $100. of policy)
1963

All one-year insurance premium rates for prepaid policies are adjusted to three year and five year rates as follows:

$$3 \text{ year rate} = 1 \text{ year rate} \times 2.7$$

$$5 \text{ year rate} = 1 \text{ year rate} \times 4.4$$

There are five rate classifications. Class "A" rates are not applicable for Suffolk County since full-time specially trained, salaried fire departments are generally required. Most communities are Class "B" generally having approved fire hydrant protection within 1,000 feet from insured. Class "CC" is fire-well protection found in approximately 20 communities. There are very few Class "D" communities, which represent unprotected fire zones.

	Private Dwelling One or Two Family Classification	1 Year* Rates
CLASS "A"	Brick Masonry Building	.09
	Household Furnishing	.155
	Frame Building	.09
	Household Furnishing	.155
CLASS "B"	Brick Masonry Building	.11

APPROXIMATE MILEAGE TABLE FOR SUFFOLK COUNTY

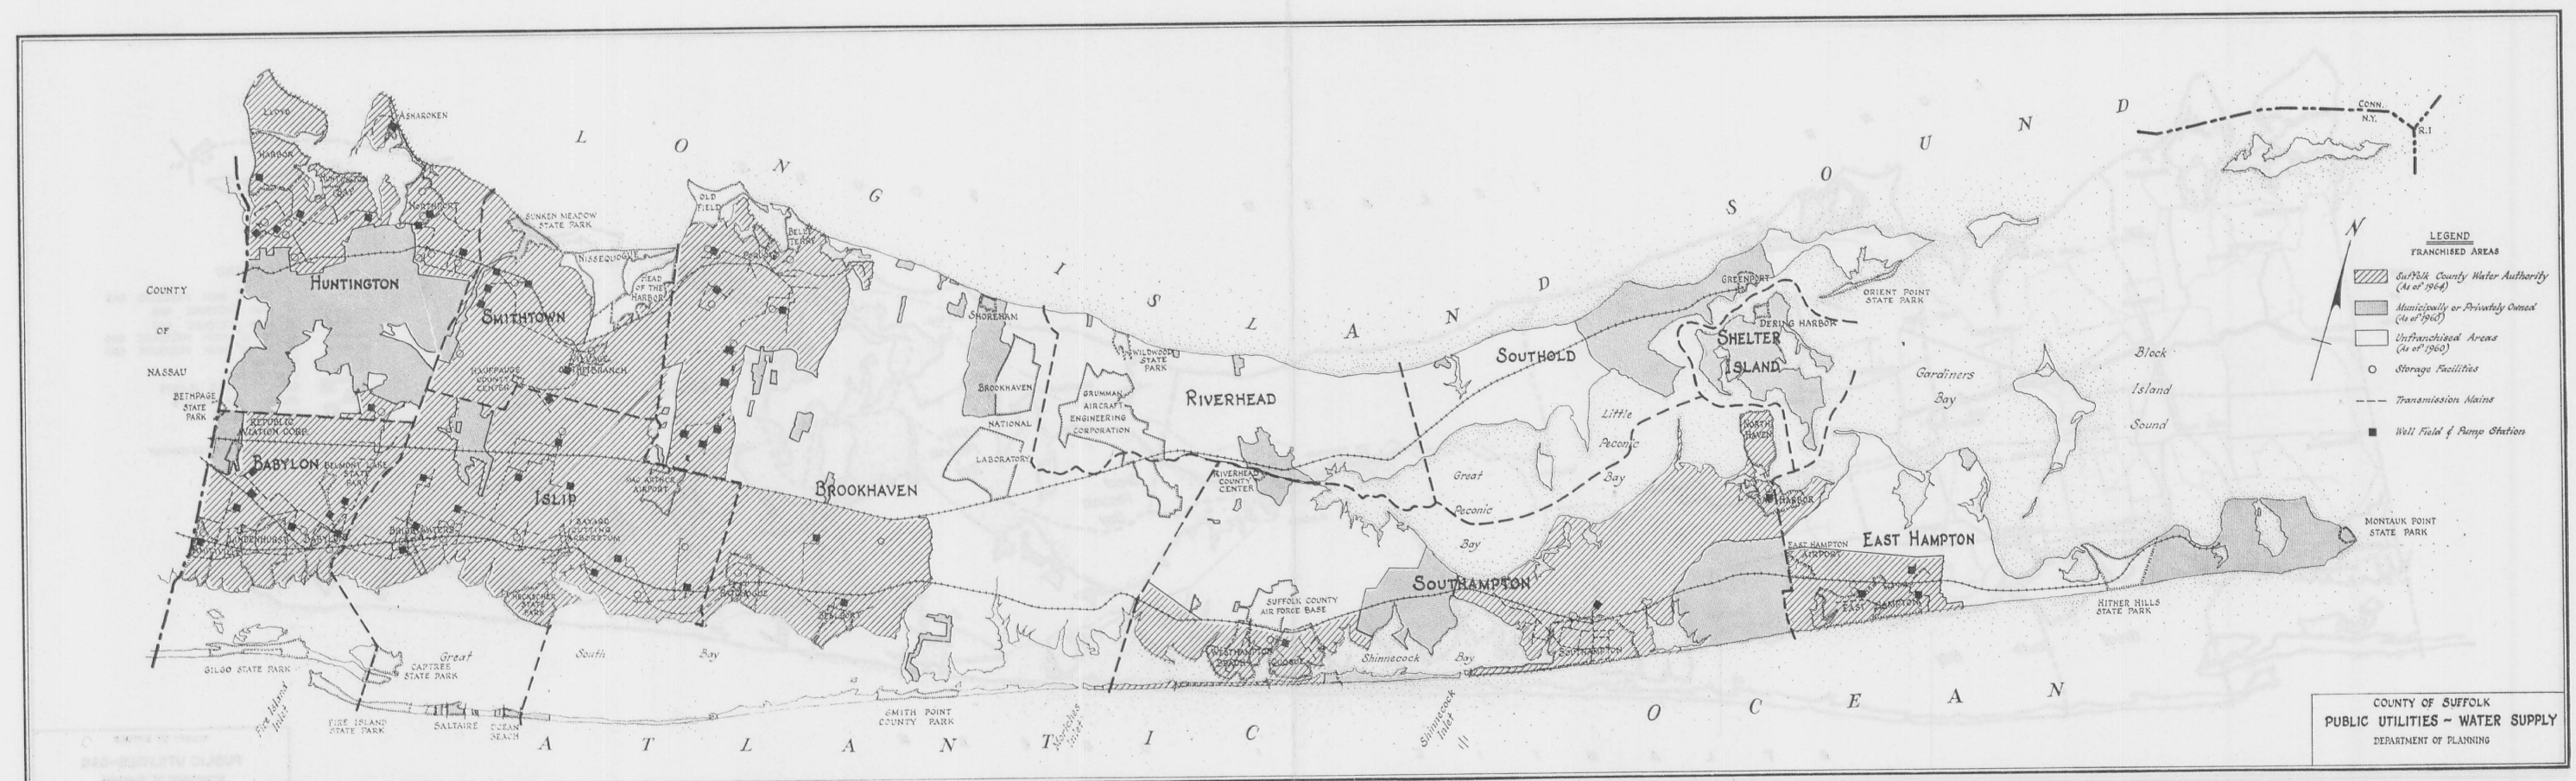

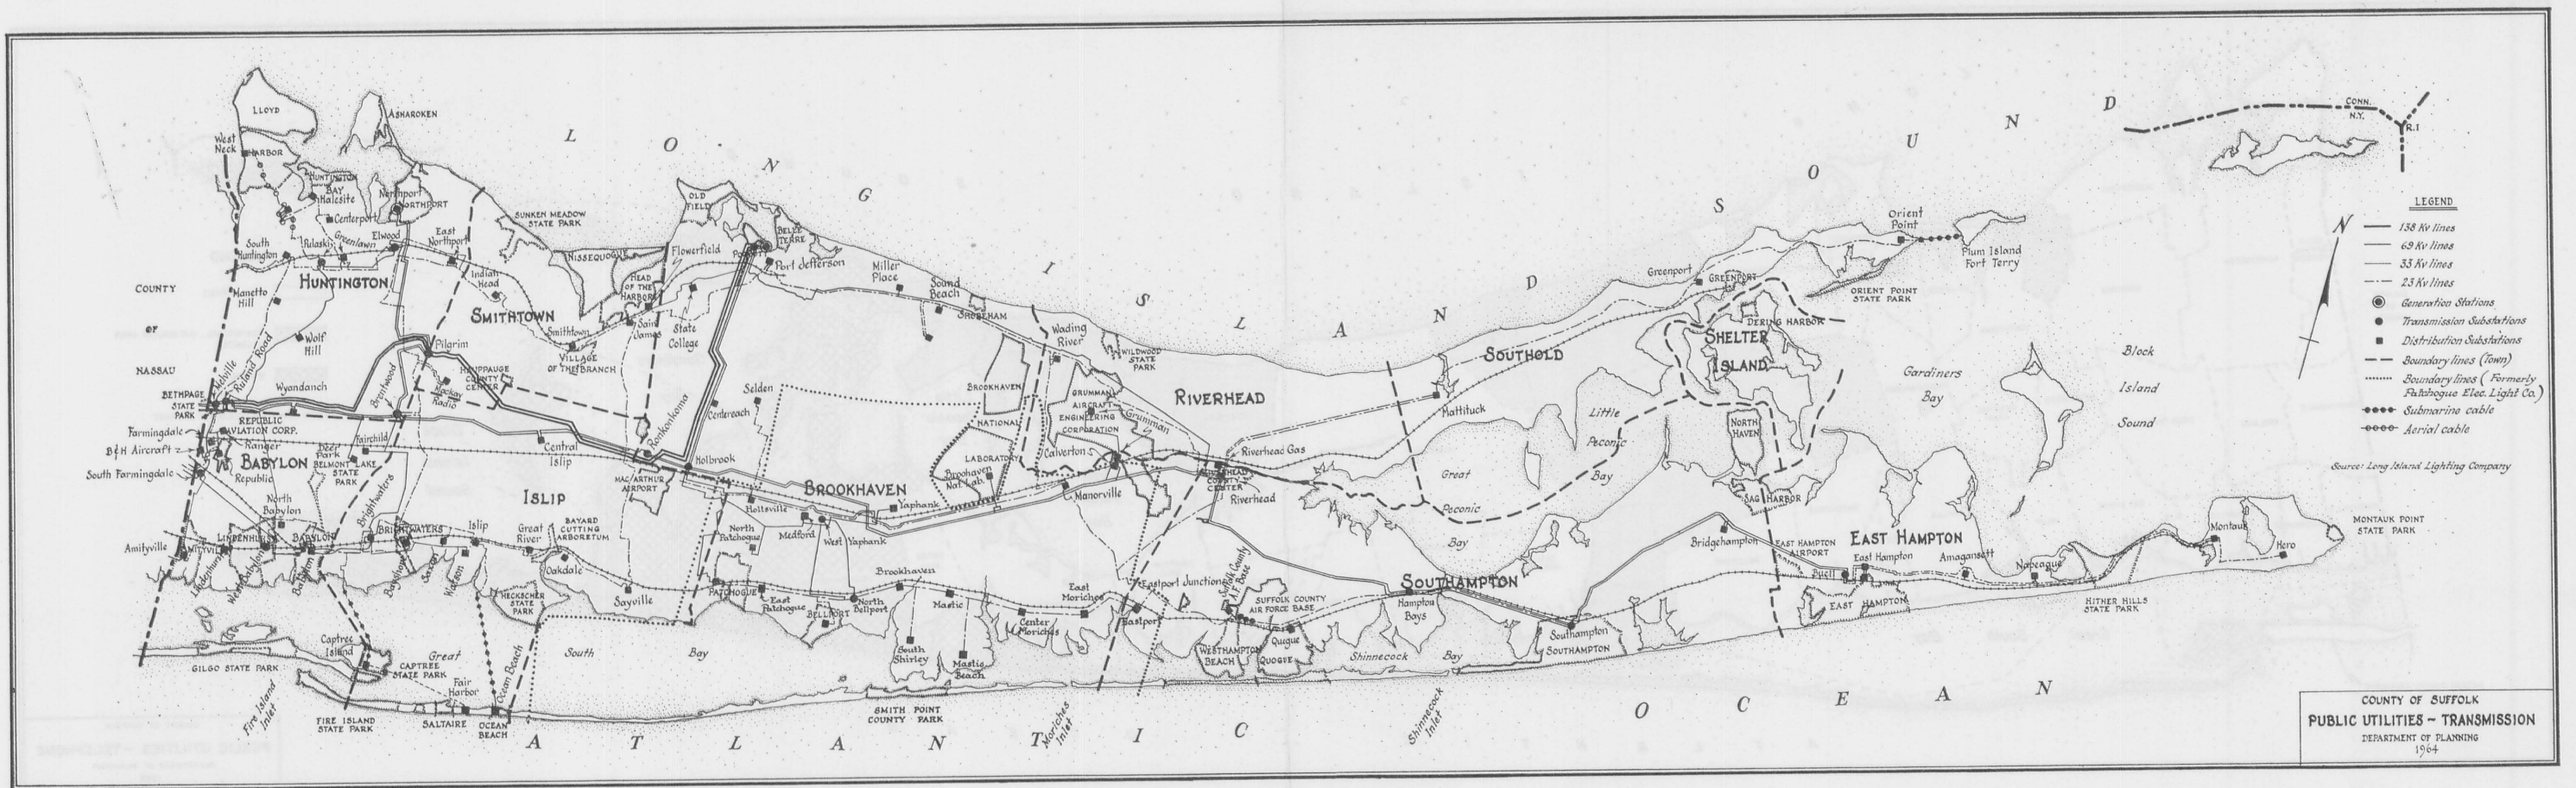

The table on the opposite page was developed as follows:

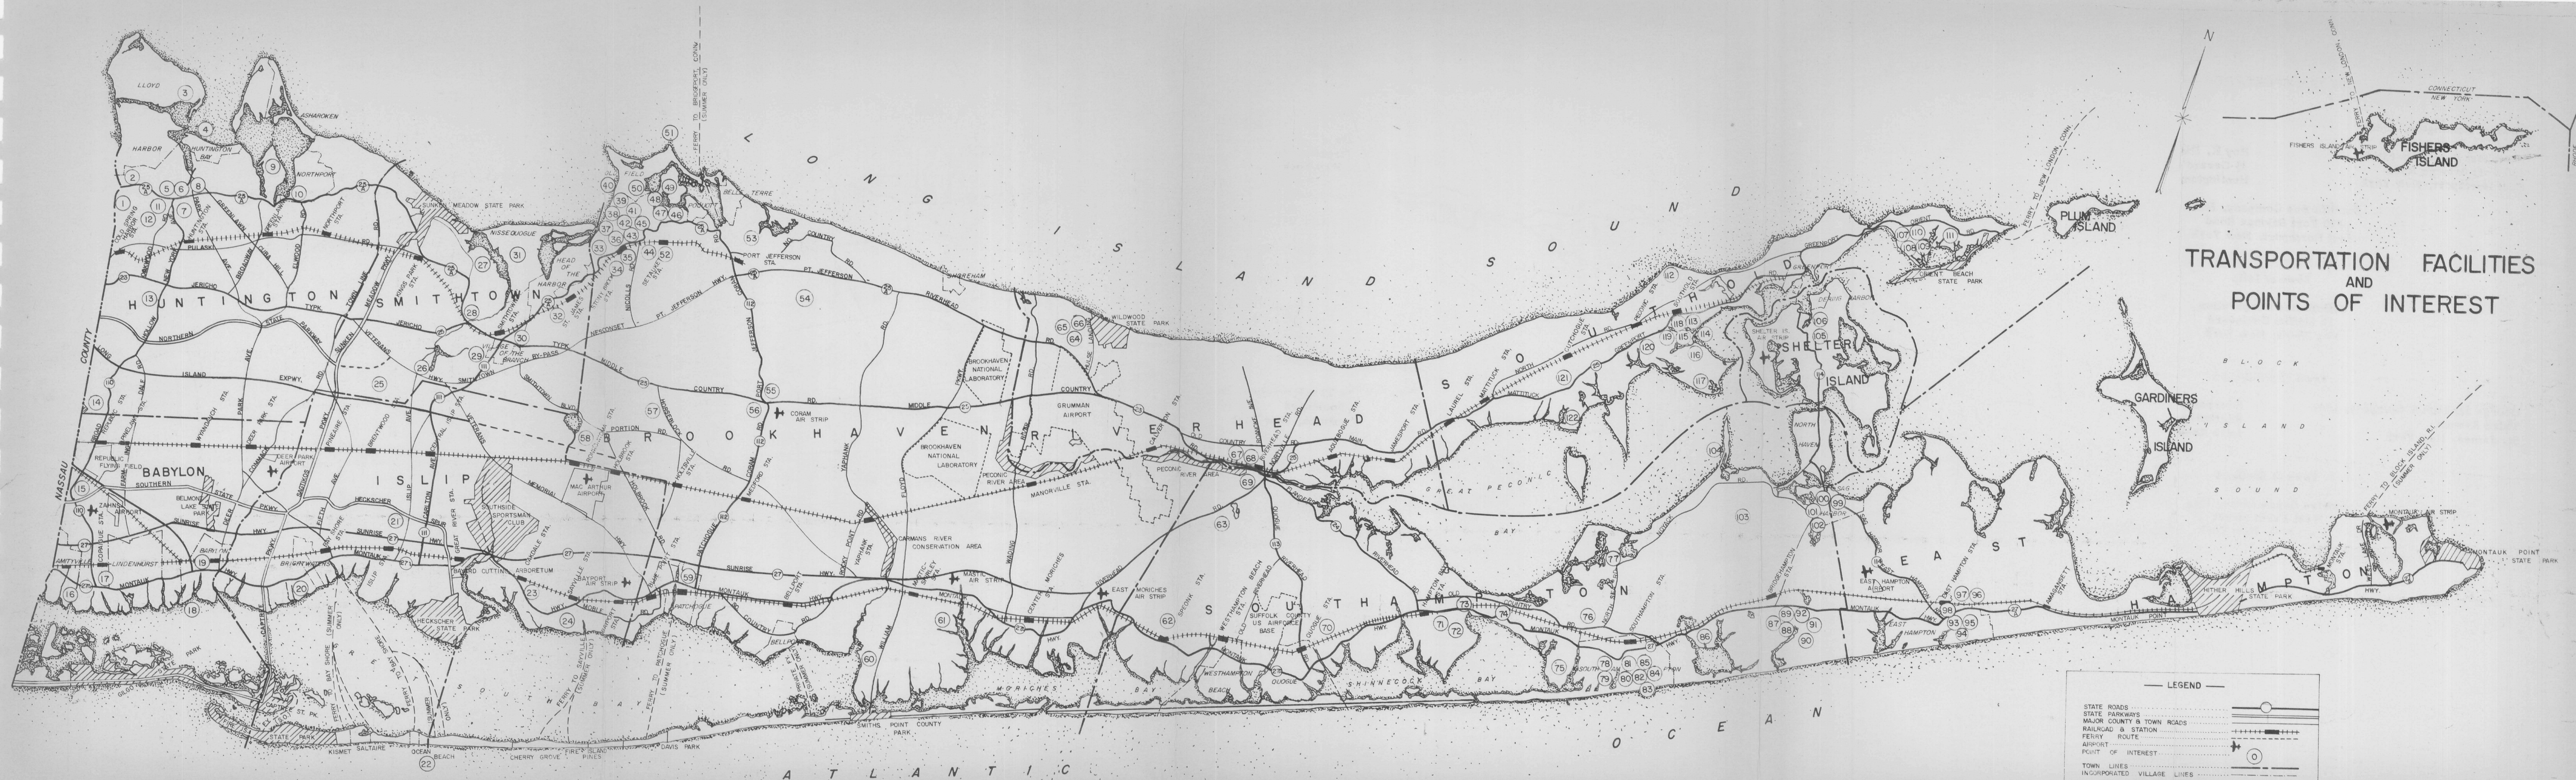

1. distances reflect those routes permitting commercial traffic and therefore all parkways were excluded from the computations;
2. the use of Shelter Island ferries was not considered in arriving at mileage figures;
3. the Long Island Expressway (route 495) was included in the computation as far east as Veterans Memorial Highway; and
4. Sunrise Highway was used as far east as Riverhead Road.
